ALL IN Means Keeping Wild Birds ALL OUT!

Be vigilant when it comes to reducing the risk associated with wild birds on your farm. Even one small “crack in the armor” of your line of defense can be an open invitation to an avian influenza outbreak on your farm.

Deter wild birds with these simple measures:

- Clean up feed spills promptly and completely
- No bird houses on your farm
- No bird baths on your farm
- No standing water (such as from leaky cool cells) around poultry houses
- Bird-proof houses
- Check eaves once a week to prevent birds from building nests in them
- Practice good insect control
- Dispose of dead birds promptly using approved methods

Every step you take to be ALL IN with your biosecurity measures is one step closer to being ALL GOOD on your farm.
